The International Sport Coaching Journal (ISCJ) seeks to advance the profession of coaching through research articles, informative essays, experiential accounts, and systematic applications that enhance the education, development of knowledge, leadership, and best practices of coaches. A joint venture of the International Council for Coaching Excellence (ICCE) and SHAPE America (Society of Health and Physical Educators), ISCJ will publish a blend of relevant studies, technical insights, examples of coaching methods employed around the world, engaging front-line stories, and thought-provoking commentaries.

With an editorial board composed of professionals from eight countries engaged in coaching, coaching education, and coaching research, ISCJ is an all-inclusive medium that extends beyond the research community to all coaches, both paid and unpaid, full- and part-time, to expand their knowledge in all facets of coaching. The journal features scientific articles about coaching and coaching education that appeal to practicing coaches, administrators, and researchers; showcase best practices; and establish a more universal language in coaching.

ISCJ is unique in that all material centers on the role, qualifications, competencies, strategies, methods, and applications of coaches rather than on sports and athletes in general. Each issue of ISCJ includes seven sections that will benefit a diverse range of coaches, including an opening editor's note, peer-reviewed articles, innovations in the field, reports of specific successful documented initiatives that demonstrate best practices, insights on various issues or approaches in coaching and coaching education, reviews of worthwhile reading in coaching research and practice, and relevant papers and abstracts from coaching conferences. Select issues may focus on important topics, such as motivation in coaching or new approaches in the field.
